BANG WENT THE LID!

All Saloons Yesterday Were Closed as Tight as Wax.

Saturday night Chief of Police Ort instructed his men to notify the saloonkeepers to close their places of business at 12 o'clock sharp and remain closed until Monday morning.

It is almost certain that the order was strictly obeyed, and the city for once was as dry as a herring.

Many of the saloons had their blinds raised giving a clear view of the inside to the passer-by on the pavement and all were quiet and deserted.

Very few loungers were to be seen on the street corners, and whether the Church congregations were increased in numbers by the closing up of the haunts of the Sunday drinker, is a matter of conjecture.

There is no favoritism being shown; all are being treated alike, and the first one caught violating the Sunday closing order will undoubtedly feel the full effects of the law—otherwise the order would become a farce and non-effective.

How long the lid will remain on the future will unfold.

COUNTER ACTION

A Contest Between the High Sheriff and Constable Chisholm

Saturday the Union Trust Company filed an order of delivery in the Mason Circuit Court against W. R. Smith and John F. Moran, the Second street shoe merchants, and placed the stock in the hands of Sheriff Mackey.

Immediately thereafter the other side took their lining, and Constable M. C. Chisholm served the following notice on the High Sheriff:

To James Mackey, Sheriff of Mason County: Not waiving any of our rights, and desiring to give a counter bond, we hereby notify you to remove at once from the store room in the Joergel Building in Second street, which we hold and occupy as tenants, all and every portion of the stock of goods, etc., which you have been directed to take possession of under an order of delivery issued at the instance of the Union Trust Company herein, and that for your failure to comply with this notice we will hold you responsible in damages.

W. R. SMITH,

JOHN F. MORAN.

By A. B. and A. D. Cole, Attorneys.

So there you are!

A BUSY SUNDAY

Services Yesterday Conducted By Evangelist Williams

Yesterday was a busy day with the Drummer Evangelist. He preached four times, and as a result of his efforts a number accepted the Lord.

At the morning service at the M. E. Church he preached on "Recognition of Friends in Heaven," and despite the threatening weather a large audience heard him. His arguments for immortality were convincing and plain. He said the business world accepted the fact of immortality. The casket factory put plates "At Rest," "Gone Home," etc., on the caskets; the marble center puts verses on the tombstones that indicate an awakening some time. The song writer knows that people believe in immortality, for he writes, "Think of the Home Over There," "We Shall Meet Beyond the River," and kindred songs, which are filled with the idea of immortality. He said that men carried with them the most perfect camera, the memory; that the image of father and mother would remain forever; that scenes of past move constantly before the mind, and by these memory pictures we would recognize our friends and loved ones in the beyond. His sermon was especially helpful to the Christians.

At the Men's Meeting at the Courthouse 350 men heard him in one of his best addresses, and at the close of the meeting about 200 stood on a resolution to live pure, clean lives.

Last night 450 were at the Church to hear Mr. Williams. The Church was filled and some went away, not finding a seat.

"Breaking Home Ties" was the theme in which Mr. Williams plead for the Christian home where the Bible was opened and the family altar maintained for the safety of the boy and girl; to keep the boys at home, enter with them into games and amusements such as are harmless and helpful, and that the best legacy to a boy or girl is a life of high Christian living. Two were converted and united with the Church.

Miss Amy King sang, with effect, that world wide song, "Till Mother I'll Be There."

Services all week at 2 p. m. and 7 p. m. Subject tonight, "The Unpardonable Sin."

Read THE LEDGER for all the home news.

W. C. Pennywitt, once Editor of The Republican in this city, died recently at his Virginia home near Washington City. For years he had been an employee of the Treasury Department. His burial was at Arlington, with the honors of the G. A. R. and Loyal Legion. Mr. Pennywitt was a native of Manchester.

CASE SET BACK

The Caleb Powers Arguments Not Heard Before Friday

The United States Supreme Court has given notice to counsel in the case of Caleb Powers that the case cannot be heard until after the conclusion of the special call, on which the Court is now engaged.

The change will have the effect of postponing the hearing until about next Friday. The case originally was set for today.

Mrs. Erasmus Mitchell of the county has suffered a third stroke of paralysis.

Faris L. Allen of Graenup county has been appointed internist at the St. Anthony's Hospital in Louisville.

Governor Beckham has recommended to the State Capitol Commission that only a habitable Capitol be erected for the present, leaving the proposed ornamental features to future Legislatures. The estimates of the architect are regarded as too high and a general reduction is probable.

"ISLE OF SPICE."

"Criticism" from The Evening News of Philadelphia: "The 'Isle of Spice,' which the program modestly calls a 'Musical Mixture,' came to the Park Theater last night, and with its catchy music and generally pleasant ways renewed old successes. The chorus with the show is especially good and shows by its smoothness and adaptability the effects of long and careful training. Miss Leslie Leigh is still the prima donna, and the comedy roles are in the hands of Sam Mylie, Herbert Cawthorne, Harry Watson, Harry Griffith and Robert Kane."

A WASHINGTON letter says Representative GAINES of Tennessee is thinking of introducing again this year his bill for clean money. The Treasury Department is not opposed to his bill, and if the member from Tennessee shows any measure of earnestness, the bill can be passed. An officer of the Treasury, speaking of this very general desire on the part of the people for clean money, said—

"I believe that this Government ought to furnish its people with clean money. But I don't believe any of the nonsense that has been printed about the danger to health from handling dirty money. In the first place, the clerks who handle all the dirty money that comes in from all over the country for redemption have been handling this money for 50 years or more, and there never yet has been a case of sickness among them due to handling the money. Still stronger evidence that there is no danger to health is the fact that this Government has for 40 years or more been manufacturing the particular kind of paper on which the money is printed. The factory is in Massachusetts, and the most hardened stomach would be turned by a glance at some of the linen rags which are received there every day in manufacturing the paper. Heaven only knows where these rags come from—hospitals and every other conceivable place. The rags may be full of disease germs, never has there been a case of sickness among the boys through handling the rags. Still, the Treasury is in favor of clean money, because that would be the best safeguard of the people against counterfeiting. First thing a counterfeiter does after he has finished counterfeiting is to soil the note and make it look as if it were a dirty note. It is hard to detect, while no one would be recognized by almost everyone who has the money. My idea would be to have Congress law remitting the cost of transporting the currency to Washington to the Banks that send in the soiled for redemption. As a matter of fact, it is the charges which Banks located at a distance from the money cities must pay for the transportation of the money to and from Washington that prevents them from having clean money. Here in Washington, it costs the Banks nothing to get new bills, you rarely find a soiled bill. If the Government were to enable the Banks to send their soiled notes to Washington free of charge and get clean money instead without any cost to them, I think every Bank in the country would be ready to enlist in the clean money crusade. It is true that even at present the Bureau of Engraving is running day and night to print the money that is needed, and if such a bill as I suggest should pass we would have to double the capacity of the Bureau. This would, of course, cost a lot of money, and the express charges which the Government would have to pay instead of the Banks would also amount to a heavy tax each year. But I think the people of this country would be perfectly willing to pay the cost if they could get clean money for their daily use."

WHILE the Legislature is honoring office-stealers and such like, it ought to set aside a day on which to canonize Tomcamel.

IF ex-Governor WILLIAM S. TAYLOR is half as bad a man as the Goebelites say he is, every Kentuckian ought to be glad that he is out of the state.

Down in Texas a Negro confessed that he killed a white man "just for fun," and to keep the fun going, a mob took him away from the officers and hung him.

CHICAGO is getting real good. A jury in that city has awarded $17,000 damages to the children of a drunken father for redress against the saloonkeepers alleged to have made a drunkard of him.

THEY are already making it warm for Mayor DEMISEY of Cincinnati. He appointed an unnaturalized citizen as his Private Secretary, and it is the general belief that, by an exhaustive search of the pollbooks of that city, he might have found a Democratic voter who could fill the bill.

The Taylor Case

Another View of It From an Indiana Standpoint

Washington (Ind.) Herald.

There is a rumor that another attempt is to be made by the authorities of Kentucky to induce the Governor of Indiana to grant a requisition in the case of ex-Governor Taylor of Kentucky, who is charged with complicity in the killing of William Goebel, defeated Democratic candidate for Governor of Kentucky, who usurped the office to which the people of Kentucky had elected Mr. Taylor. The theft of office through the power of the Goebelite Legislature was a high-handed robbery by methods as shameful as they were inexcusable. We suppose that there is not a Democrat in the state of Kentucky, outside of the Goebel faction, who will say that the action of Goebel and his henchmen was anything but downright piracy. There was no question of the election of Taylor, in spite of an unfair and infamous election law designed by Goebel to give his friends control of the election machinery.

Following this instance of political brigandage, probably without precedent in the United States, came the deplorable murder of Goebel. It was a monstrous crime, against which the indignation of every law-abiding citizen arises. Yet it must be admitted that Goebel's methods invited just such a tragic conclusion of his life. In politics he was unprincipled, and his own hands were wet with the blood of a neighbor. In a state where human life is so cheap, Goebel's lamentable end did not cause astonishment regardless of the horror of it. He took the sword and he perished with the sword.

After Goebel's murder naturally came the clamor of his partisans for blood. Governor Taylor, then depoeed, was accused of having instituted the killing. He fled the state and took refuge in Indiana. An appropriation of $100,000 was made by the Goebel Legislature to prosecute the accused persons. Repeated attempts were made to induce the Governor of Indiana, then the late James A. Mount, to consent to turn Taylor over to the Kentucky authorities. Governor Mount refused, as did his successor, Governor Darrin, and Taylor has remained in this state since that time. The Indiana Governors based their action on the theory that it was plain that Taylor could not get a fair trial if he should be consigned to the friends of Goebel. To send the man back to Kentucky meant his death, with certainty, either by pretended legal process after a mock trial before a prejudiced Judge and a packed Jury, or by assassination at the hands of some of the fierce partisans of the dead Goebel. In the interests of humanity the Indiana Governors put aside the question of comity between states. They declined to deliver Taylor over to the ravening Kentucky wolves. The people of Indiana supported them in their action with respect to the demand for the extradition of Taylor. Attempts by the opposition political press and speakers to make political capital of it were met with derision. If there is one thing that the American people are sticklers for it is fair play, and every man of common sense knew, and knows, that Taylor, innocent or guilty, would be in Kentucky as a lamb in a tiger's lair. So the people of this great state approved the course of our Governors in making Indiana a place of refuge for an accused man who could not possibly have a fair and impartial trial for his life.

It was not a question of his guilt. The Indiana Governors did not pass on that. But in the face of the certainty that his conviction would follow his return to Kentucky, guilty or not guilty, they refused to become party to his death. That was all there was to it, and we believe that every fair man should uphold them.

The opinion sometimes is expressed that Taylor showed a want of physical bravery and moral courage in fleeing from Kentucky; that he should have stood his ground, let the consequences be what they might. Perhaps this is true. Every man who takes high office runs the risk of assassination. Within forty years three Presidents of the United States have been murdered. History records the sad stories of many men who have felt the ax, the knife or the cord as the result of political persecution and unspeakable partisan malice. But life is sweet. Governor Taylor had a wife and many young children who looked to him. It is not for us to say that he is coward because he sought to escape from sure death and preserve himself for his family.

All in all, it is proper that the Indiana authorities have had the public approval in the case of Taylor. It would be a mean reflection on our humanity should this state surrender him to his implacable political foes to undergo a farcical trial in a Court where there is no justice for him.

SOCIAL EVENTS

The Rectory of St. Patrick's Church was the scene of a much delighted gathering on the evening of Wednesday last, when with lavish hand the Reverend Pastor, Father Jones, gave to his Church Choir their fourth annual dinner. The dining hall was tastefully festooned with amylax and evergreens, and in the center of the table was a profusion of natural flowers, whilst elsewhere the colors, green and white, prevailed. It is needless to add that the repast, skillfully prepared and daintily served as it was, could not have been excelled. Anecdote and repartee enlivened the occasion, vocal and instrumental music diversified the program, making the hours pass only too swiftly.

After the table was cleared short talks were made by various members, who with one accord cordially wished their reverend host many years of happiness and continued usefulness among his appreciative flock in Maysville.

Towards the close of the dinner Mr. W. A. Cole was presented with a pair of solid gold cuff buttons, an expression of the Reverend Pastor's appreciation of Mr. Cole's efficiency as Choir Master. It was chiefly due to the interpretations of Mr. Cole that the Cecilian music of the Christmas services at St. Patrick's Church was so effectively rendered.

SENATORIAL ELECTION

First Ever Known in Kentucky Where Good Liquors Did Not Flow Like Water

Correspondence Courier-Journal.

FRANKFORT, KY., January 7th.—Kentucky needs no whisky in her Senatorial campaigns, thank you. That is, she doesn't now. It is a week-old story that the combined bar bill of the three Senatorial candidates last week would not amount to thirty cents. There is no record that any one of the candidates took a drink or that any one connected with the candidates took a drink. Certainly no whisky could be found in either headquarters.

Occasionally a campaigner of the old school of the Colonel type would poke his head through the doorway, sniff the air suspiciously, and turn away. He was not actively in the campaign. He was the reminiscent hero of memorable fights for the United States Senatorship in Kentucky.

One of these ancient mariners whose keenness of smell had yielded to the touch of time and the ravages of "licker" would not trust his nose. He spied a pitcher on the mantel in Mr. W. B. Haldeman's headquarters, and moved stealthily toward it.

"Humph, water!" That was all, but there was feeling in it. In Judge Paynter's headquarters, the same. And, ye gods! the same in "Old Jo's" headquarters.

Then it was that the old-timer faded away.

WAS NOT 80 YEARS AGO... It was not always so in Kentucky. This is perhaps the first campaign where whisky played no part.

"Way back in 1884," the old Colonel will tell you, "whisky was as free as the air. Lawl there was times. That was the year Old Jo was fightin' 'Cerry Gordy' Williams and Bill Sweeney for the honor of representin' Kentucky in the United States Senate. It was Old Jo's first race for the Senate. As I recollect, he had some fourteen votes on the first ballot, and the old warrior was shy about one of election. Me and Jo had our headquarters over at the Bauer House, I recollect they called it. Weeks ahead the whisky began comin' in. Bottles and jugs, and niggers to wait on the gentlemen. It was no questions asked. Just step up, men, and help yourself. They was no end to it. I had right smart myself, and still they wa'n't no end. "Old 'Cerry Gordy' was right here in this Capital Hotel, fourth room back. He had whisky and champagne. But he paid for his. 'Old Jo' didn't haf to. Ev'ry man had himself a still in them days, and they wasn't no sort or passel of combinations. Ev'ry man was 'Old Jo's' friend, and constituted himself a committee on entertainment. Well, sir, don't you know, 'Old Jo' raised them fourteen votes to sixty-one, and that sent him to the Senate that year. They had a little the rise of seventy ballots to do it, but 'Old Jo' turned the trick.

THOSE WERE HAPPY DAYS. "My, but they was times that night. Me and 'Old Jo' had champagne with the boys that night! I recollect they was $1,700 worth of that fizzy stuff. We asked 'Cerry Gordy' to come down to it, but he said that he had a headache. You see, he had been drinking champagne through all them ballots, and we had been only drinking corned, spring-water Kentucky whisky. Next day some of us had headaches, but we was willin' jest to see 'Old Jo' to the Senate."

After that, the old-timer had nothing more to say. But the Kentucky product played no mean part in Senator Blackburn's subsequent races. It was the thing to have. No headquarters was hospitable without it. No race was ever run without the exhilarating jaice. Even when only the "glad hand" was necessary to the incoming legislators in 1890, a little "licker" was provided for the boys.

In 1896, when the "gumshoe" statesman from Burksville tied up the Legislature and Senator Deboe was discovered, whisky kept up the courage of the workers. A little could be found conveniently placed in 1902, when Senator Blackburn was returned to Washington practically without let or hindrance.

The election just passed is the only one that was absolutely dry. Cigars? That's another story. The smoke couldn't be cut with a knife. There is no sentiment against cigars. But cigarettes are threatened.

SUIT SETTLED

Stanton Clift Recovers $375 Lost at the Gaming Table

The suit filed in the Mason Circuit Court several weeks ago by S. C. Clift against Thomas Ryan for $400, said to have been lost at the gambling tables in the latter's place of business in Market street, has been withdrawn and the matter dropped.

Saturday Clift, through his Attorney, A. D. Cole, received $375, Ryan holding out $25 he claimed Clift owed the house.

No one ever thought the suit would be allowed to come to trial. It would, in a sense, have been suicidal on the part of Ryan to have done so.

A man who goes into a gambling house and bucks up against the game should take his medicine gamely when the gaff is sunk into his pocketbook; most certainly he would have taken the ewag if it had come his way.

Perhaps this will be a lesson to Ryan as well as others who they permit to gamble in their house—minors and fellows with weak hearts should undoubtedly be barred.

INTRINSIC MERIT

Says Duggist Pecor is What Makes Vinol Popular.

"The intrinsic merit of this new cod liver oil preparation, Vinol," said Mr. Pecor, "is beginning to be realized by the people of Maysville. Of course in my position as a druggist, I have seen innumerable medicines and proprietary articles introduced, but never in my long experience have I ever known or heard of a medicine that would produce more beneficial results than Vinol.

"I attribute this to the fact that Vinol contains in a concentrated form all the medicinal elements contained in cod liver oil, actually taken from fresh cods' livers, but without a drop of oil or grease to nauseate and upset the stomach, and it contains no sickening drugs.

"A prominent physician writes: 'Vinol is the most valuable preparation of cod liver oil known to medicine. It is of untold value to create strength and build up the general system for old people, weak women and children, and it has no equal for hard colds, bronchitis and all lung affections.'

"There are hundreds of people right here in Maysville who can testify that there is nothing equal to Vinol to make rich, red blood, to increase the appetite, cure stomach troubles, give strength and renewed vitality to the aged build up the run-down, tired and debilitated, make the weak strong, cure chronic coughs, colds and build up the convalescent.

"We freely offer to return your money in every case where Vinol fails. Try it on this guarantee."

JOHN C. PECOR, Druggist.

Mr. Clyde Hiney of Wood street is very sick.

Have you farms, houses, timber land, bonds, stocks or land notes that you wish to sell? I can find you a buyer if you make the price right. Any one wishing to buy any item mentioned above will find it to his interest to give me a call.

DON'T BE SATISFIED.

Why Be Content With Itself from Backache when a Maysville Woman Shows You The Cure.

Don't be satisfied with relief. Brief freedom from backache. Reach the root of the trouble.

Cure the cause, and backache disappears for good.

It can be done. Doan's Kidney Pills make lasting cures. Experiences of Maysville people prove this. Here's one Maysville case of it:

Mrs. Lizzie Bridges, wife of Elmer Bridges, of 206 West Third street, Maysville, Ky., says: "In March, 1900, I gave a testimonial praising and recommending Doan's Kidney Pills and in it I told how I learned the great value of this remedy. I had been troubled with a bad back and weak kidneys from girlhood, and in my efforts to find a cure I tried every medicine I could find but without benefit until I began using Doan's Kidney Pills, procured at J. J. Wood & Son's Drugstore. They proved just the remedy I needed, went right to the cause of the trouble and as a result brought relief that led me to testify in their favor. I have never been without Doan's Kidney Pills in the house since. Every spring I take a box whether symptoms of kidney trouble are apparent or not, and in this way keep the kidneys in good condition and guard against attacks of my old trouble."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents a box. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y., sole agents for the United States.

Remember the name—Doan's—and take no substitute.
